

The other spies are recording something truly groundbreaking.

They've caught our gorillas singing as they eat.

It's a chorus of appreciation.

The first time this phenomenon has ever been recorded among wild mountain gorillas.

They not only sing for their supper.

Consuming 40 pounds a day is bound to have consequences.

They live in a semi-permanent state ... of flatulence.